Annual Report Message from the Chair and CEO

Our annual report celebrates the passion and generosity of Yorkers who love where they live and make a lasting impact through endowed giving with YCCF. 2017 was a year of strong growth and record-setting grantmaking that trains educators throughout York County to think outside the box, inspires problem-solving at the York City School District's state-of-the-art STEAM Academy and builds bridges at a county-wide student leadership summit on race.

Young people and their families need economic opportunity to prosper. That is why YCCF is building capacity and coordination among economic drivers to strengthen our region's competitive edge and accelerate economic growth. We also sparked a collaborative approach to branding York County and downtown York to boost tourism and business generation.

YCCF is driving discussion about the challenges faced by towns across the county via the release of its Communities in Crisis report. The analysis sounds the alarm about growing fiscal distress among York's boroughs and townships and is sparking critical conversations about meaningful solutions.

We can't know what challenges lie ahead, but as careful stewards of legacies, YCCF ensures that your gift today will be here to spark an even more vibrant York for future generations.

Your legacy is in great hands.

William R. Hartman

Jane M. Conover, MSW

OUR MISSION

We create a vibrant York County by engaging donors, providing community leadership, and investing in high-impact initiatives while building endowment for future generations.

The Power of Endowment

When you give a gift to York County Community Foundation (YCCF), you are joining a community of donors that is making York County better every year. An endowed gift to YCCF is special because it grows over time and its impact is exponentially greater than a one-time gift. Your gift continues to support the community and causes you care about beyond your lifetime and becomes a part of the legacy you leave behind.

Imagine that you start a YCCF fund with a $25,000 gift now or through your estate. That fund is likely to grant another $25,000 over two decades and still be making grants every year after. That's the power of endowment!

Endowment is what makes YCCF different from other charitable options. It is permanent. You choose the types of charities to benefit from your fund or you can rely on our team of local experts to direct the grants to York County's greatest needs of the day through the Fund for York County. It's your choice.

What will your legacy be?

A LOVING TRIBUTE AND A LEGACY OF GOOD

“What good did I do in the world? Is my community a better place because of me?”

Attorney Kurt Blake often hears these questions from clients as they plan their estates. For Kurt and his wife Angie, the answer to the second question was a resounding “yes.” When Angie lost her 13-year battle with cancer in 2015, Kurt made sure she will never be forgotten. He created the Angela N. Dobrinoff-Blake Charitable Fund at YCCF to continue her support of the things that brought her so much joy.

One of these pleasures was Junior Achievement. A mother and attorney, Angie still made time to be an active volunteer. She loved being able to share her experiences with young people and teach them in a fun way.

Another organization the family loved was Olivia’s House. They learned of Olivia’s House through friends and participated in its fundraisers. Shortly after Angie’s death, Kurt also lost his father, and the dual losses hit the Blake children hard. They turned to Olivia’s House for emotional support. Through his involvement in the parent group at Olivia’s House, Kurt learned more about the organization and was so moved by the mission that he now serves on its board of directors.

In 2017, the Angela Blake fund granted its first distributions to these two organizations, carrying on Angie’s legacy of care for her community. “Angie loved flowers, but when she died, I asked family and friends to contribute to the fund at YCCF instead. I’ve named the fund in my will as well, to add to the good work Junior Achievement and Olivia’s House can do in the community,” said Kurt. “I see the fund as a continually blooming flower.”

The story of David and Joan Stauffer's legacy begins with a cookie, long before they met at Grove City College. It begins in 1871, when David's great-grandfather, David F. Stauffer, founded Stauffer Biscuit Company in York, PA and created a treat the world knows as the animal cracker.

David and Joan got married, and after serving in the U.S. Navy on the West Coast, returned to York in 1956 where they live to this day. They helped build the family business by making animal crackers the primary product, providing jobs for their community. Their three children, Rodney, Dianne, and Scott, were raised here.

Even after retiring, the Stauffers continue to give back to the community that had supported them. They created several funds at YCCF to forever benefit specific interests that are dear to them, such as the arts, children's issues, the York Symphony Orchestra and the beautification of York. However, they also recognized that as their business evolved from its inception in 1871, our community needs will also change over time. That is why they created the Joan F. and David E. Stauffer Jr. Fund for York County to round out their charitable giving portfolio. Joan and David take pride in giving back to the community that benefitted their family and have firmly rooted the Stauffer family legacy for generations to come.

Spark INNOVATIVE APPROACHES TO LEARNING

Born in 1919, Doris Schwartz lived life outside of the proverbial box. She started her career as a teacher, before deciding that it wasn't the path for her. Instead, she became a flight attendant and traveled the world with American Airlines. England, Switzerland, Hong Kong, Japan – Doris saw them all, often with her longtime companion, Carl, a pilot with the airline. For a time after her retirement, she even lived on a boat with Carl. When Carl died, Doris moved back into the West York row home she inherited from her parents and settled into a quiet life.

Doris and Carl

Attorney John Stitt helped Doris plan her estate prior to her death in 2013, but he didn't know that unraveling Doris' assets would criss-cross the world, just like her travels. Ultimately, when all was said and done, Doris left a $3.4 million gift to YCCF to enhance education in York County.

"Doris was a unique woman, and she wanted her legacy to reflect that," said John. "She was greatly inspired by her experiences internationally, and through the creation of the Doris E. Schwartz Education Fund at York County Community Foundation, she is able to spark York County educators to 'think bigger' and create a culture of innovation in their schools."

The fund created a forum called the Innovation Lab through Lincoln Intermediate Unit (LIU) 12 for 35 teachers to work together across 12 school districts to design and execute innovative solutions to real-world problems using design thinking. Design thinking is a process for creative problem solving. Some of the problems tackled in the first class of the Innovation Lab include increasing student engagement through changing their space, improving community perceptions of the school district through monthly STEAM Challenges, and creating a Think Tank class to introduce students to the concept of design thinking.

The program is now in its second year and has expanded to include the School Retool project for school administrators to participate in the Innovation Lab experience.

In addition, the Doris E. Schwartz Education Fund provides scholarship support to graduating seniors from 13 York County school districts. Since 2015, the Fund has awarded a total of $156,000 in scholarships so that students can achieve their college dreams.

Doris may not have fully envisioned the legacy she was leaving, but the education system in York County will be forever changed because of her generosity and foresight.

Spark A PASSION FOR LEADERSHIP

“Leadership is the capacity to translate vision into reality.” – Warren Bennis

Carolyn Eyster Steinhauser has a singular passion for nonprofit leadership. From her early days at the YWCA and United Way to her work as the first executive director at YCCF to her decades as a tireless community volunteer, her vision led her to build our community’s capacity to work together in new ways.

This passion led her to create the Carolyn E. Steinhauser Fund for Nonprofit Excellence at YCCF in 2004 to provide technical support and leadership development to the nonprofit partners that are so critical to community progress.

Over the years, this field of interest fund has provided strategic planning support to nearly 100 local organizations. Now it’s been focusing its grant making for even greater impact. Recognizing that York County’s economic vitality can ensure a thriving community for everyone, it recently awarded significant grants to build the leadership at Downtown Inc. and the York County Economic Alliance, and an advisor is committed to staying at the table as an active partner in this work.

The Carolyn E. Steinhauser Fund for Nonprofit Excellence is a lasting tribute to Carolyn’s vision and strategic approach to philanthropy and will help ensure a strong nonprofit infrastructure to support York’s residents for generations to come.

Librarian. Career woman. Devoted to her church. Meet Caroline John.

As a child, she attended Emmanuel United Church of Christ (UCC) with her sisters, before leaving Hanover to pursue her education and launch her career. As a well-respected authority, Caroline helped build community libraries in Ohio, Virginia and New York. Her career was her top priority, so she put off marriage until her retirement at age 68. After her marriage to Adolph John, they moved back to Caroline's hometown of Hanover, where they enjoyed the community together for 22 years. When Adolph died, Caroline took solace in her church family at Emmanuel UCC, where she was a lifelong member.

Fellow church member G. Steven McKonly was also Caroline's attorney and introduced her to the concept of an endowment at YCCF. "Caroline was aware of the importance of endowments for nonprofit organizations, but she didn't know how to go about starting one for our church. With YCCF's help, I was able to make that dream come true for her."

When Caroline died in 2014, in her will, she left $1.6 million to create the Caroline and Adolph John Fund at YCCF so that her church would have ongoing financial support.

A portion of the church dates back before the Civil War, making it a local architectural treasure. The age of the church poses challenges to maintenance of the building, but thanks to Caroline's forethought and kindness, several projects have been undertaken. The financial cushion provided by the grants from this fund allows the congregation to expend its energies on helping others here and abroad, and improve programming for its members and the community, while being able to better plan ahead. Thanks to Caroline and Adolph's generosity, Emmanuel UCC's congregation is putting its beliefs to work.

All children deserve places to run, play, laugh and gather with friends. Especially the children of York City, who have limited access to safe outdoor play space.

At this time, York City maintains the city parks, but has limited resources to invest in capital improvements. Thanks to the vision of one man, that's about to change.

Because of his love of gardens, Louis Appell, Jr. invited the Pittsburgh Parks Conservancy to York to share how it uses its conservancy to care for its parks, providing funds for capital improvements like new playground equipment or replacing tennis courts. Years later, this vision sparked the creation of the York City Parks Conservancy, which will raise $3 million to invest in an endowment with YCCF that will be used for park improvements.

Mr. Appell's $750,000 lead gift from the Powder Mill Foundation and a second gift from former Yorker and professional football coach Bruce Arians have made that goal achievable.

"Without the York City parks, I wouldn't be where I am today," claims Arians. He recalls the friendships he made as a boy playing at Memorial Park in York and credits them for his interest in football and highly successful career.

Proceeds from The York City Parks Conservancy Fund will allow the City to leverage additional state and private sector resources to invest in the York City parks. Current priorities include the expansion of softball and baseball fields and walking paths in Memorial Park, repaving tennis courts and restroom improvements to Farquhar Park and the construction of a stage at Penn Park.

Who knows, maybe the next great football coach is playing at one of our City parks right now?

There's a renaissance taking place in downtown York. Stores, restaurants, businesses and residences continue to pop up, giving the city an entrepreneurial vibe. Many of these projects have a transformational impact on our city and county but don't fit a traditional grant funding model.

To respond to the need for giving options for entrepreneurial-minded philanthropists, YCCF created the Social Impact Investment Fund. The fund invests in large-scale, strategic projects that have the potential to be transformative. This fund has allowed YCCF to invest more than $1 million in key economic development projects over the last three years, like the conversion of the Woolworth and Weinbrom Jewelers buildings on West Market Street into market-rate residential and commercial spaces. These investments take the form of loans or equity, and repayment will be reinvested in the fund for future projects. Next up will be an investment in the Yorktowne Hotel renovation.

YCCF's YorIt initiative takes a slightly different approach to social impact investing. YorIt members pool their gifts to have a greater impact than an individual gift alone. The member-driven group holds the YorIt Social Venture Challenge (SVC), where socially-minded organizations can pitch their idea for a $20,000 grant. Members vote on the project that they think will add most to the vitality of York. A recent grantee was the Taste Test Restaurant Incubator. Taste Test gives aspiring restaurateurs the opportunity to test their concepts before going through the expense and work of opening a restaurant. So far 23 concepts have gone through the incubator. Hamir's Indian Fusion was a huge hit with the community during its runs at Taste Test and was the first concept to open a permanent restaurant, adding to vitality and cultural diversity of downtown York.

While Pappus House is a hospice home for the dying, the house feels alive. Residents are surrounded by family and friends cooking, sharing, laughing and crying. One family member said of the Pappus House staff and volunteers “They gave us the opportunity to be fully present as husband and children during her final days and to have many good moments together.”

“We want our residents and their guests to understand that death is sad, but not scary,” says Susan Nelson, executive director of Pappus House.

The organization hosted its first resident in December 2017, thanks to a grant from the Memorial Health Fund (MHF). MHF provided more than just financial support to the young organization. During the grant process, MHF board members and YCCF staff asked tough questions of Pappus House leadership, helping them to refine their message and business plan. This made the leadership team better able to appeal to both the hearts and minds of other potential community partners.

Now that Pappus House is open to the community, it continues to welcome new residents, and learn from each experience. Through community engagement and educational efforts, the home is reforming end-of-life care and shifting the mindset about death to one of understanding that dying, loss and grief are part of the fabric of life.

Memorial Health Fund transforms the way our community addresses compelling health issues to improve the complete physical, mental, and social well-being of the residents of York County. Memorial Health Fund became a supporting organization of York County Community Foundation in 2015. Previously, Memorial Health Fund was a supporting organization of Memorial Hospital.
